DID YOU KNOW...
- The University of Alabama was the last college in the South where no Black student had ever been accepted into a traditionally white sorority or fraternity.
- The first female students were admitted into UA in 1893; the first Black student wasn’t admitted until 1956.
- Alabama was the last state in the U.S. to get rid of its law banning interracial marriage. This didn’t happen until 2000.
- While affirmative action was born out of the Civil Rights Era, the group who has been found to benefit most from these practices is not Black people, but instead White women.
- The FBI ran a series of illegal covert projects thought to be responsible for the assassinations of many Civil Rights and other Black leaders entitled COINTELPRO.
