PSYCHOLOGY

MISSION STATEMENT

The Department of Psychology was established over 70 years ago. It promotes independent scholarship and works to ensure competence in the fundamental areas of psychology and in the specializations offered. The Department trains psychologists who are scientists and scientist-practitioners and, in so doing, provides broad research training, substantive academic concentrations, and opportunities for teaching and applied experience. Graduate students are encouraged to participate with faculty members in the diverse research and training activities of the Department – both formal and informal.
